DETAILED ACTION

1. In view of the argument filed on January 17, 2003, the prior art rejection of claims 1-3 is hereby withdrawn. New ground(s) of rejection follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

3. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Doster et al (US 5,957,223).

Doster et al discloses a bi-center bits having stability features, with such features, directional stability can be anticipated when axial force is applied to the bit. Doster et al further suggests that the bi-center bit can be connected to an output shaft of a downhole motor (col. 5, lines 26+), the turbine-type mud motor in the claim is therefore anticipated, as it is known in the art that a downhole motor can be either a turbine or a positive displacement motor. The use of a bent housing motor or steerable motor is a well known art in directional drilling hence constitute little patentable distinction.
